Comprehension

Women should be given practical help and encouragement to participate in both economic and social development. For example in many countries in the world, women farmers have been allowed to get bigger areas of land, bank loan and technical help in order to produce more and better crops. This has resulted in both good income for the family and good supply of food for the area. As well as practical help, women need to be included in making decision about what happen in their country. In the Sudan, for example, we hear that women issues are part of the ١٠ years strategic plan.
